What is the Wrangler ProRodeo Tour?

The Wrangler ProRodeo Tour, which debuted in 2000, showcases the top cowboys, cowgirls and rodeos in the PRCA. In 2008, three of the top four prize money rodeos sanctioned by the PRCA – Cheyenne (Wyo.) Frontier Days, San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo and the Reno (Nev.) Rodeo will highlight the Tour.

The Wrangler ProRodeo Tour expanded to 26 events in 2008 and, for the second year in a row, will culminate with an elimination playoff system that will play out at four elite PRCA events. Contestants will be able to count 15 of those 26 rodeos toward qualification for the Ariat Playoffs system.

Points earned at Tour rodeos will be used to determine Tour standings, which started to take shape at the season's first Tour event, the SandHills Stock Show & Rodeo in Odessa, Texas, Jan. 4-12. Overall, the Tour will hit 13 states – with five events each in Texas and California – in its seven-month run that will ultimately take ProRodeo's best cowboys and cowgirls to the Ariat Playoffs.

Points at Wrangler ProRodeo Tour rodeos are awarded for places in reverse order of the number of places paid in every round. Specifically, if a rodeo pays six places per go round, 6 points are awarded for the first-place winner, 5 for second place, and so on. Points awarded for the average are in accordance with the number of rounds as well as if the rodeo has a final round. For example, if a rodeo has three rounds and an average, the average will be paid 1.5 times the round placing; therefore the points awarded to the contestants who place in the average will be designated similarly. Points will be given only for round placing, average placing, and finals placing.

The regular-season Tour concludes with the Dodge City (Kan.) Roundup Rodeo in early August

The first Wrangler ProRodeo Tour Playoff event will take the top 35 cowboys from the Tour standings in terms Tour points, along with the "Wild Card" qualifiers, champions from March's Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo, in the first Ariat Playoffs event at Caldwell, Idaho.

From there, the top 22 in total Tour money in each event, as well as the Wild Card and the champion from Caldwell will advance to a 24-person (24 teams in team roping) second playoff event in Puyallup, Wash. The field will then be cut to 12, with those contestants moving on to the next event in Omaha, Neb., then to 10 for the final round in the playoffs system in Dallas.

A tournament-style format is used at all Ariat Playoffs series events, with all contestants competing in each event's preliminary rounds. The top eight in the average then advance to the semifinal round, where all previous scores and times are thrown out. The top four contestants from the semifinals advance to the finals, where scores and times again are erased. All of the Ariat Playoffs series champions are determined by the final round scores and times.

Fox Sports Network and CBS are scheduled to televise the four Ariat Playoffs events.
